How I Do It

Registry Resources: A Summary Resource Guide for Education, Training, and Online Help for New and Current Cancer Registrars: Part III

Vickie Hawhee, MEd, CTR; Vonetta L. Williams, PhD, MPH, CTR

Introduction

The Registry Resources Guide for Cancer Registrars was first published in this journal in 2015, presented as a list of current resources that registry personnel could use. The list has become longer since then, with many new resources being added in 2018, a year with many changes. Trying to keep up with all the new resources can be daunting for a new certified tumor registrar (CTR) as well as the seasoned professional. This list of resources is not meant to be comprehensive, but rather should serve as a foundation for all things cancer registry.

Methods

The Registry Resources Guide was initially developed to aid new employees when training and with setting up their computer for ease of access to all references. The guide was then expanded to aid employees outside of the cancer registry who work directly with the data, helping those employees understand what we report, how we report it, and why.

Results

The Registry Resources Guide is divided into the following resource categories:

- American College of Surgeons, Commission on Cancer (CoC)
- American Joint Committee on Cancer (AJCC)
- Surveillance, Epidemiology, and End Results (SEER) Program
- World Health Organization (WHO)
- North American Association of Central Cancer Registries (NAACCR)
- Physician and Facility Information
- National Treatment Guidelines
- Chemotherapy/Systemic Drug and Regimen Information
- Follow-up/Outcome
- National Organizations
- Education and Training
- Other Resources

Conclusion

In summary, the Registry Resources Guide should be useful and beneficial to new and current cancer registrars; further development of this guide can incorporate your specific state standards along with any other resources that you use on a regular basis that were not included.
